This painting compared to our modern version is related by how the hands are a person who study/supports the main point of view here, the tree or root. Now the tree shows feminism in the original by Diego Rivera, but for his love, Frida Kahlo. In our painting, *I couldn't find a tree as well as this xD, the tree is to support the women's right movement. Then our tree is sprouting posters of how all the men and women supporting for this cause that needed to be solved at once. The root in rivera's painting we thought were like cells, since he had a bit of an interested of science.
